CALL for PAPERS

Climate change is a global problem promoted by global warming and leads to uncertain climatic conditions. The strategic response to climate change involves consideration of climate-related risks along with additional risks and benefits of adaptation and mitigation measures. In correspondence with this circumstance, the Indonesian Association of Environmental Experts (IALHI); Sebelas Maret University, Indonesia; Graduate School of Environmental Science, Gadjah Mada University, Indonesia; and The United Graduate School of Agriculture Science (UGSAS), Gifu University, Japan are collaborating to organize The 4th International Conference on Climate Change (The 4th ICC 2019). The purpose of the 4th ICC 2019 is to accommodate the new related inspiration about how to minimize the climate change impact that occurred at this time, and to share knowledge theoretical and practical aspects of climate change and global warming as well as their industrial applications.
